Mentorship Applications Available

July 1, 2017 via website; Due October 13, 2017

- Is your two-year college one that has not benefited from NSF ATE funding in the past 10 years?
- Could you use help developing or strengthening STEM technician education programs to meet industry needs?
- Would your college benefit from improved leadership development skills among STEM faculty?

If the answer is yes to any of these questions, this could be for you!

About Mentor-Connect

Benefit from and contribute to the ATE program through Mentor-Connect.

- Get a Mentor: One-on-one Mentorship opportunity to prepare technician education faculty in STEM disciplines to write competitive grant proposals for the NSF ATE program in the small, new-to-ATE program track. Take advantage of no-cost technical assistance and resources for writing competitive ATE grant proposals.
- Be a Mentor: Trained or experienced Principal Investigators, Co-Principal Investigators, and Project Directors with a desire to give back to the ATE program have an opportunity to share their expertise to help others compete for program funding.
- Become a Leader: Faculty have the opportunity for professional development to expand their skills as new grantees and grow as leaders in the ATE Program and STEM education.
